HAT would a General do withour soldiers? Every Salvation Army Officer who has been in charge of a Corps with but few of a Corps with but few soldiers knows something of their value, and especially of good ones. A Corps without soldiers is like a body without bones; a tree without branches; a telegraphic system without wires.

Spiritual Leaders in Corps

The praying Soldiers are the spiritual leaders in a Corps, whether with or suthour such that the difficulties that can possibly come. Through finencial difficulties the changes of Officers, the persecution of outsiders, the smallness of crowds, the roughness of open airs, the indifference of others, the going wrong of Com-rades, they stand. No one expects such soldiers to do anything cise. They can be relied upon for work.

They look after local interests: They dook after local interests: They do not run around to other Corps, missions and churches, for all of which we thank God, because they are needed, but they look after their own noncreat; they work at their own job; they mind their own-business. If they are not on hand, business. It they are not on haid, not at their post, you can recken it is because they can't be there. Such soldiers. They are worth more than their weight in gold.

The Work of Praving Soldiers

They are interested in making soldiers. They look after those who live near their Hall. They try to build up the Corps by getting the fathers fathers, mothers and children-whole families—into it. SOME SOUL-STIRRING STORIES

Elsewhere we give the conclusion to the re-markable serial story of John Bryce, who was at one time a sergent-major in a Highland regi-ment. We understand that he is among those who have come to the aid of his king and coun-try, and, although incapacitated by his wounds

This is the third Christmas I have spent in England, and as far as London, is concerned, the war scens to have made very little difference. Business is going on as usual, and there are only three things that would indicate that Britain is at war.

The first thing that I noticed was the darkness of the streets. Only a portion of the lights are in use, and these are shaded. Naturally, it makes makes it quite difficult to get about.

makes it quite difficult to get about. Then you see the soldiers marching through the streets and drilling in the parks. And the last, and most noticeable thing, is the luge posters which catch one's eye at every turn, appealing for men to enlist for service. "The War Cry" readers will, no doubt, have read of the German raid on the East Coast. Colonel Whiller showed me a portion of the shell which killed Adjutant Avery, the Corps Officer at Hartlepool. This was a very sad thing. It appears that was a very sad thing. It appears that the children had got up early, and were all downstairs. "The Terror That Flieth by Night"

That "the old order changeth, give Ing place to the new," is true conremine methods of warfare as in other things, and we venture to think that the sword and shield and horseman rushing upon horseman methods of former days were more menty and admirable than sceret mine fields and nucturnal Zeppelin raids of the present day. Any way, we are now at the zenith of human civilization, and what has the world to show for it? This: Millions of men living like troglodytes and tadpoles in caves and mud and water; red trains devoted to the transportation of lunaties maddened by the horrible explosives and conditions under which they lived; millions of exiles living on charity: deadly mines that send whole ship's crews to the bottom: and then the dropping of bombs on inoffensive people from Zeppelins travelling at the rate of fifty miles an hour, concealed from view by the blackness of the night. If this be war, then it. is up to all to work and pray for the hastening of that time when the spear shall be beaten into a pruning hook, and the sword into a ploughshare, and men shall learn war no more

It seems to us that only when nations shall learn to act in the Spirit of Christ that peace will be placed On a permanent basis. Man's philosophy has been attended with horrible results; and armed peace has been provocative of carnage, so let us as Salvationists strive more than ever for the Salvation of our fellows, so that the little leaven may leaven the whole lump of the nations, and bring about a better day. Pray that God may uphold and comfort the victims of the war, and that victory may attend the efforts of those whose conquests will make for righteousness and the spread of the principles of Christ's Salvation.

URELY no New Year can of the Lord, and on behalf of the have opened quite so sadly for suffering, I thank them all ... sust multitudes as this one! for we of The Salvation Army, and I shall spend it in large part in mourn with those who mourn. Our hearts serve the suffering whether our hands can reach them or not. I do not think I exaggerate when I say that large numbers of our people everywhere weep with those who ween, and feel the anguish of stricken grief on their account as if they themselves were bereaved.

This makes the old happy greetings of the New Year scem not quite fitting. A large part of the world is involved in the stress and storm of oassist at Welland. a murderous war. In a myriad homes And Lieutenant there are anxiety and prayer for defenders of their country in dire peril. In tens of thousands of families there is mourning for the dear dead in a farm lawa's ambrace to lie down under their own or the stranger's earth. With vast ficets upon the death-strewn scas and millions of men on land locked in death grapple, with wrecked sanctuaries and borning villages and starving peasants, how shall we talk of happiness or sing the songs of peace?

And so I will change the timehonoured form and wish you, my Comrades and Friends, a Courageous Year-a Believing Year-a Loving Year. Let it bring us, or refuse, the things we need to make ithappy. So long as we can make it a year of courage, of faith, of love, what matters! Out of the darkness Jan 25th, the Staff of human strife and hate, these will still lead us to The Commonwealth. of Jesus Christ. Come along, then, and let us join hands to make 1915 a good year, notwithstanding all, Even if the war lasts, it shall be so. We

And all the nations labour to fulfil law, and live henceforth in peace, in pure goodwill."

A few days since I received the first instalment of help from our comrades in the United States for our sorely-pressed Funds. I am most grateful for every dollar, and this gift is doubly precious because I know it is, in large part, the result of the nersonal self-denial of com-rades on the other side. In the name

Some portion of this contribution And whether they be triend or is for Belgium. It is most welcome caring for children of that unhappy people. Nothing among the many striking and moving things in "King Albert's Book" (Hodder and Stoughtoo) is more touching than an incident related by the French writer Pierre Loti, which has reference to two Belgian children who had lost their parents and arrived friendless among a crowd of refugees at a railway station in France one night in

"Two little creatures lost in the phiable throng, held each other tightly by the hand, two little boys abridged brothers the elder who obviously brothers—the elder, who may have been five years old, pro-teering the younger, of about three. No one elaimed them, no three. No one elaimed them, no one knew them. How had they been able to understand, finding themselves alone, that they, too, must get into this train to escape death? Their clothes were deently, and their little stockings were thick and warm; clearly they belonged to humble but eartful par-

"The elder, clasping the little one's hand closely, as if fearing to lose him, seemed to wake to a sense of his duty as protector, and, half asleep already, found strength to say in a suppliant tone, to the Red Cross lady bending over him:

"Madame, are they going to

"That was all they asked le "They were put to bed at once, to-gether of course, and, nestling one against the other, they fell at the same moment into the tran-quil unconsciousness of childish

It is the unrelieved horror and misery of suffering such as this inflicted on thousands of perfectly innocent human beings-people who have no possible interest or share in bringing it about, which makes war worse than Hell. Hell at least reserves its woes for the guilty-war inflicts them on innocent and guilty alike! But Pierre Loti continues :-

"Once, long ago, in the China Sea, during the war, two little birds, smaller even than our wrens, arrived, I know not how, on boar our ironclad, in our admiral's cabin, and all day long, though no one attempted to disturb them, they fluttered from side to side, perching on cornices and plants.

"At nightfall, when I had for-gotten them, the admiral sent for gotten them, the admiral sens for me. It was to show me, not with-out emotion, the two little visitors, who had gone to roost in his room, perched upon a slender sliken cord, above his bed. They nestled closely together, two little balls of feathers: touching and almost merging one in the other, and slept, without the slightest fear, sure of

Speaking of the United States. calls to mind two interesting events for hoth of which every Salvationist ought to praise God. It is just one hundred years since neach was done clared between the States and the Old Country. May it be a thousand. if the world should last so long before that neace is Broken! Of one thing I am sure. There has never been a time during the hundred years of neace when there was such goodwill and good understanding between the two nations as prevail to-day. I do not say that war has tween them is impossible. I do ear however, that it grows daily less possible, because I believe that the principles of universal justice and love, which have their root in the religion of Jesus Christ and which are the great antidote of all war, are becoming daily better and better understand on both sides of the Atlantic

And let us thank God also for the wise and benevolent statesmanship which has brought about the Treatu agreeing that there shall be no war till any dispute which may arise has been investigated by an International Commission. Our old friend. Mr. Stead, put up a brave fight for this, and Mr. W. J. Bryan, anothergood friend of ours, one of the leadug men of the States, has carried it through. Here is an extract from his speech on the matter: -

"Already we have learned that is it more advantageous to expand it more advantageous to expand the land we have by doubling its productiveness than it would be to add an equal area by conquest: to add an equal area by conquest; the sacrifices made in altrustic work prove how limitless is the field of noble effort; when men rival each other in doing good. There is as much inspiration in a noble life as in an heroic death.

"No question is ever settled in-til it is settled right." Force is impotent to fasten upon mankind a single falselnood. There is in every righteous cause an inherent every righteous cause an inhercut power by which it is able to over-come opposition. As the invisible orm of life in the grain of wheat takes from earth and air that which it needs for its growth and perfection, so the invisible germ of life in truth gathers nourishment from the dead things about it, and grows mutil it becomes at irreslst-ible force, bringing victory to those who dare to stand for it—One with God shall chase a thousand, and two put ten thousand to and two put ten thousand to flight."

The English newspapers announce a generous gift to The Army from the Emperor and Empress of Japan, This is, of course, for the Work in that country. It is an event which will probably have a considerable influence on the public mind there. and is the first evidence of interest in our Work on the part of the present Emperor-his father, the late Emperor, received our late General in audience when the latter visited Japan in 1906. It is good to find the our pity.

Temple Songsters Pay a Visit to Wychwood (Toronto).

Our Soldiers are eagerly searching and claiming Sanetification, and Captain Cummings is urging the vital question of a spirit-filled life. The Temple Songsters came up in fine style recently, for the afternoon and evening, and gave us some exand evening, and gave is some ex-cellent music. Special mention should be made of the rendition of "Trust in Him Always," "The Way of Peace," and "Holy Spirit. Faithful Gnide," which were given in fine style. Other tens on the programme comprised vocal solos, recitations and an instrumental duet, mando-line, and pianoforte, by Brothers Kean and Payne. NOTES AND REPLECTIONS.

(Cantinged from Page 0.) the Work of The Army. I wish F could get the people in some other countries I could name to act assensibly and liberally.

Next Sabbath Day our British: forces are asked specially to pray God to bring the war to an end-Surely here is a request we all desire to make. Those who approve of and who disapprove war cant unite here. Those who love the Cause of Old England and believes her to be fighting for freedom and! honour and to protect the weak, aswell as those who just as passionately love the German Fatherlandthe land of Tauler and Luther and Tersicegen-and are even ready; gladly to die for her sake, all canmeet here before the Throne of God! and erv out to Him to stretch out. His mighty hand and stay the wrathof man and stop the awful strife. So, let us pray.

But let onr prayers be sincere-Whatever else they may be-this isall important if we wish them to beenswered. Otherwise, indeed, they will only be a taking of the Nameof the Lord in vain-a kind of profaulty, which must be peculiarly hateful to Him. He abominates all shams, how much more than all others, the prescuding in His presenceto have an experience or wish or purpose which is unreal1 Perhapsthere is no sham so atterly false as sham prayer! So I say we must be sincere. And if we are, that will domore than anything else to strengthen faith, to enlarge even the grains of mustard seed till it can say to the mountain, "Be moved out of the

And pray in submission, God's. will is more important to he done than any will of ours. We may not go to Him as though we were in a kind of opposition to Him, wanting our way at the expense of His way. No. The great thing—the greatest: of all achievements for us-is to get into His will and be wrapped around by it and kept there in peace and union with Him. That was one of the highest peaks of all prayer when, our Saviour said: "My Father-let: this cup pass from Me---but, nevertheless, not My will, but Thine, bedouc.

And let us pray for the enemy of our people and our tand, if we have any, no matter to which people wemay belong. Prayer will heal our wounds, and hold back the tides of bitter feeling surging all about us, and help us to look on the things of others as well as our own. We remember the Lord Jesus, how when He was reviled, reviled not again; how when He was scourged, blessed. those who beat Him; how when Hewas slain, prayed the Father to jorgive His murderers. That prayer for enemies was perhaps the highest of all the heights to which prayer has yet led the Human Spirite Father, forgive them they know not what they do."

Bottle of Acid Broke in Pocket of Coat Given to Aged Vagrant.

Governor Dawson, of the County Inil would like one of the charitable institutions in the city to take charge of an old man, William Cassidy, who or an old man, William Cassidy, who is just about on his last legs. He is sixty-three years of age and can only just totter along. He was arrested as a vagrant on Saturday, and was found to have a severely-burned leg.

The only explanation the old man an give is that some one had given him an old coat in which there was a bottle of acid. He went to lay down in the spow and the bottle broke and his clothes and body were badly burned. He was in a pitiable condition when he arrived at the jail, condition when he arrived at the jail, but he was well looked after, and The Salvation Army sent a complete new outfit of clothes. He was sent new outfit of clothes. He was sent to the bospital, and on leaving the jail the old man tearfully expressed bis gratitude to the jail officials for what they had done. He is under remand at the police court on the

ACCIDENT PREVENTION

That accident prevention is largely matter of education has been clear ly demonstrated by carefully com-piled statistics of some United States railways, recently published. On one railway, during a period of lifty-three months of operation since the formation of safety committees among the employees, a reduction of 371 is shown in the number of per-sons killed and of 11,285 in the numher injured.

At the same time, despite this favourable showing, in three years there were registered 17,781 accidents of which 99 out of every 100 artists. could have been prevented. While no statistics of the accidents occurring throughout Canada are available, it requires only a casual glance at the newspapers to show glance at the messpapers to show that the number is large. In view of this fact, it is very evident that there is great need of an extension of the "safety first," educational movement, in Canada. The subject is one which should not be left entirely to private interests to develop; it is in the gen-eral interest of Canada at large, that yention, movement is the public school. The need of care should be staggit the child, as lasting impressions can be made before the young mind. The pulpit laso has an infinence, which should be discreted to call. cnee which, should be directed to-mards education along-accident prevention lines. This work may rightly come under the head of social service, in which, some churches, are taking an active interest.

Canada owes it to her poople, minimicipalities owe it to their eftigens, schools and other organizations, owe it to their scholars and members that attention be faithfully directed that attention be faithfully directed.

I've a life of happiness!

Sinner, you can have this blessing, Come to Christ, your sins confessing, Then your life will happy be, And in Heaven you'll get a mansion,
There to live eternally.

POUR THY SPIRIT

Precious Savior, we are coming, At Thy feet just now we fail, Waiting to receive Thy blessing, Come, and now haptize us all.

Chorus, Pour Thy Spirit, pour Thy Spirit.

Mighty Lord, our hearts are open Thy penetrating gaze;
Oh, let the fire descending Fill our hearts with power and

Time and talents I surrender, Freely all I give to Thee;
Faith lays hold of Thy great promise Brings the fire just now on me.

THE HEAVENLY CITY. This is the last song composed by "Dad" Pettit, of Medicine Hat, before he passed away to the Glory Land:

(Tone.-Tell it again.) There was a true Soldier, whose name was St. John, Carried away to a mountain alone, Where one of God's angels did unto Where one of God's angels did unto him come 'And showed him a sight of the saints' future home.

Chorus.
Tsn't it grand! Isn't it grand!
To know you're an heir of the Heavenly Land?

He showed him a City is to behold, to behold, to behold, the streets are all lined with the fines of gold; the walk are of langer, they are section and bright.

That City is four square, its length and its breadth, Its height and its depth are exactly the same;

Twelve thousand furlongs it measures complete,
Plenty of room in the saints' future

Twelve pates has that 'City, three' gates on each side,
Our forefathers' name on each gate
is inscribed;

is inscribed;
Each gate is one pearl, most noble
and grand,
Where happy saints enter that Hea-venly Land.

No need of the sun, nor yet of the moon,

For the City is lit by the King on
His Throne,
Who died on the Cross and arose
from the tomb,

And now sits as Judge in the saints' To gain that fair City no price is to pay,
For Jesus, our Saviour, has opened the way;

He gives you a welcome and hids
you to come, And get a free pass to the saints'
